The Campaign's Big Issue

This remarkable revelation of the diplomatic history of the Administration's relations with Mexico will be presented in four parts.

The American Ambassador, Henry Lane Wilson, tells in his despatches, his correspondence, his memoranda and his personal comments the graphic story of the Mexican tangle and reveals for the first time the exact part played in Mexican affairs by the two administrations of Taft and Wilson.

This will be the leading issue in the campaign, and you cannot keep in touch with it unless you read these articles.

The First Instalment Will Appear To-morrow in

THE SUNDAY SUN The subsequent numbers will be published on August 6, 13 and 20.
